REPORT

OF THE

SUPERINTENDING SCHOOL COMMITTEE.

Citizens of Campton :—I would respectfully report: There have been two terms of school, in each of eleven districts, and one in each of the other two, in town during the year; and each term has been twice visited by your committee. The terms varied in length from six to eleven weeks.

Seven of the twenty teachers had never taught before: eleven were from out of town. A want of experience has in some cases exhibited itself in the management of the schools. Whatever confusion there may be at home, there should be order at school. If children are allowed to be disobedient and impudent out of school, they should be required to be obedient and respectful in school.

A serious evil in some of the schools has been a want of punctuality in attendance: 367 instances of tardiness were reported in one term of eleven weeks. Number of scholars, forty-five.

The teachers, quite generally, themselves answer too many of the questions they propound to their pupils. Let the question be definite and plain, and the scholar understand that he is expected to answer it, or say he can not, and allow him sufficient time to do it.

I think the interest of our schools would be promoted by every parent or guardian visiting the school in their own district at least once each term. I would encourage public examinations or reviews, at or near the close of school, to which parents should be specially invited. I would recommend every district in town, save district number 3, which is already supplied, to place in their schools mural maps and charts, and Webster's Unabridged Dictionary—last edition.

I would suggest that new school houses, or extensive repairs, are very much needed in districts No. 4, 6, 7, 11, 12 and 13.

The recommendation of my predecessor in office, in his last report, with regard to exchanging the arithmetics then in use for Eaton's Series, has been approved and carried out.

As you value the perpetuity of your free institutions, as you regard the welfare of your children, as you prize the future prosperity of your town and the market value of your real estate, I beseech you let not your interest in the common schools diminish; but rather let there be strenuous effort to improve and lengthen them; and as one means to this end I recommend the town to raise more money than they have been wont to do for the support of schools.

The one term of school in Dist. No. 1 was taught by Mr. William Wallace. Although his first attempt at teaching, he exhibited tact and ability for the work. Scholars were interested in their studies, and made improvement.

Dist. No. 2. Summer term was taught by Mrs. R. G. Merrill, of Plymouth; a teacher of large experience, who gave general satisfaction. Winter term, Miss Nellie P. Sanborn, of Holderness, teacher. She seemed to comprehend the duties devolving upon the teacher. Her method of instruction was good. I would suggest a little more promptness and a better economy of time in the school room. Scholars appeared well in school, but who destroys the fence near by! School lengthened six weeks by subscription.

Dist. No. 3. Summer term taught by Miss Rissie L. Hoyt, of Wentworth; a superior teacher: refined, intelligent, ever exerting a good influence, accurate and thorough in her teaching, governing with gentleness, yet with dignity and decision. School prosperous. Winter term in charge of Mr. Lewis P. Bickford, of Moultonborough, a conscientious and faithful teacher, but deficient in government. Did not show himself complete master of the situation. A somewhat difficult school to manage. The examination, however, was highly creditable, both to teacher and scholars. This district united with district No. 12 for a private school of a month, after the close of the public schools.

Dist. No. 4. Summer term by Julia A. Ordway, of Rumney; a hard working teacher, and, considering the difficulties she had to encounter, was very successful. Winter term Mr. G. F. Merrill was teacher. This was his first school. Some experience in the business would doubtless have enabled him more easily to have managed some of the refractory boys. The older scholars were well disposed, and progressed in their studies.

Dist. No. 5. Both terms were taught by Miss S. Fannie Littlefield, an enthusiastic and thorough teacher. A like spirit was exhibited by the scholars. A majority of the parents were present at the examination of the school, and others had visited it during the term: a good custom. This school was lengthened by giving the board of the teacher during the winter term.

Dist. No. 6. Miss Flora A. Blair, of Vt., taught both terms. School orderly and well behaved. Teacher has many excellent ideas about teaching. There seemed to be more interest in the school, both on the part of the teacher and pupils, in the summer term than in the winter.

Dist. No. 7. Miss Sarah E. Willoughby teacher, summer term. Miss W. was zealous in her work, and her scholars advanced in knowledge. Miss Lizzie Southmayd taught the winter term. A promising young teacher, manifested an interest in her work, and secured the confidence and respect of her pupils. This is a very quiet school.

Dist. No. 8. Miss Sarah E. Cook teacher the summer term. This was her first school, and in her own district. She lacked in confidence in her own abilities, rather than in faithfulness in her work. School made fair improvement. Winter term, Mr. D. C. Hill teacher. Both teacher and scholars appeared much engaged in their work, and were successful.

Dist. No. 9. Miss Sarah J. Burleigh, of Plymouth, taught both terms; an experienced and well qualified teacher. School a successful one. There was a private school in this district, after the close of the public school.

Dist. No. 11. Miss Clara A. Osgood teacher both terms; a young, enterprising and successful teacher. Scholars diligent, seemed to appreciate their privileges, and made good progress.

Dist. No. 12. Summer term taught by Miss Mary Morrill; an experienced and efficient teacher. A profitable school. Winter term taught by Mr. Charles A. Jewell, of Plymouth, a teacher of some experience. Very good order in school. Not quite as much promptness and accuracy in recitation as is desirable.

Dist. No. 13. Miss Amanda S. Webber teacher the summer term. She exhibited a good degree of energy and perseverance, both in the management and instruction of the school. Miss Hattie M. Maling teacher the winter term. We can hardly say what might have been accomplished if the teachers and scholars had had a fair chance. The school house is quite too small and much dilapidated. A considerable part of the time was spent in endeavoring to keep comfortably warm.

Dist. No. 14. One term taught by Miss Sara J. French, of Fisherville a competent, patient and faithful teacher. Considering the facts that they had but nine weeks school in the year, and some of the parents failed to coöperate with the teacher in carrying out some of her reasonable regulations, the school appeared well and made excellent progress.
